How this pack is intended to be used

1. NEXIE publishes the public opportunity on its website.
2. NEXIE promotes the opportunity through LinkedIn.
3. NEXIE registers interest with La Trobe WIL / Industry Placements.
4. An interested student reviews the published project and approaches La Trobe to seek approval as a self-sourced placement.
5. La Trobe assesses project fit, supervision, host and compliance requirements.
6. An independent practising lawyer is agreed as supervisor or formal legal host.
7. Only after written approval and placement documentation are complete does the practicum commence.
8. A paid internship or ongoing role may be considered separately once NEXIE's commercial position and legal workload are confirmed.

Current FLIP position

NEXIE is participating in FLIP Phase 1: Founder Readiness and plans to apply for Phase 2: Pre-Accelerator Intensive, subject to selection. Phase 2 applications close 20 September 2026; if selected, the program runs 8 October-3 December 2026. The proposed Summer placement is intentionally positioned after this deeper commercialisation work so the legal project can respond to validated business decisions.

Public integrity note

The opportunity should be genuinely published and open for expressions of interest. Public materials need not disclose private personal relationships. However, the placement proposal should not contain any false statement about independence or how the student became aware of the role. If La Trobe later asks a direct conflict, relationship or prior-connection question as part of its approval process, the student and host should answer the question accurately.
